The programme often shortened to “PADMA Design Scheme” is officially the PADMA Designing, Branding, Marketing & Exports Promotion Scheme. It supports eligible micro and small enterprises with specified expenditure on reaching customers and presenting their products.

Its scope can include product listings on e-commerce platforms, market intelligence, logo and package design, digital marketing and innovative or sustainable packaging. A project should identify the actual service purchased and the eligible product it promotes.

Assistance is linked to the PADMA product

The March 2024 notification provides reimbursement of 50% of eligible expenditure, with annual ceilings of ₹10 lakh inside an approved PADMA cluster and ₹5 lakh outside the cluster in the relevant block around the identified product. It states a policy period from 17 August 2023 to 16 August 2028, subject to policy validity.

The unit must meet the prescribed registration and operating conditions and manufacture the approved PADMA product. For the unit’s separate machinery or building investment, see PADMA Capital Investment Subsidy. The source restricts comparable support from other state-policy schemes. Having a website or running an advertising campaign is therefore not enough to establish eligibility.

Keep evidence of delivery, not only an invoice

For design, retain the agreed scope, delivered files and the product or packaging they relate to. For a marketplace listing, retain the listing, product catalogue and platform invoices. For marketing, distinguish creative production, media expenditure and other services, and keep payment evidence against each component.

Prepare the claim through the prescribed department process and retain the acknowledgement. The notification contains different timing language in its application and time-limit clauses. Confirm the controlling deadline promptly rather than waiting for the longer period to expire.

Can the same campaign be claimed under another scheme?

The scheme contains a restriction on similar assistance under other state policies. Assess the precise cost and assistance already received before preparing any second claim.
